STILL PLAYING WITH TOYS SIGNS FOUR ISSUE DEAL WITH PHENOM ARTIST CHRIS ENTERLINE

North Hollywood, CA, December 15, 2006 – Heating up Still Playing with Toys’ comic division for the New Year, in an announcement today Editor-in-Chief Troy Benjamin revealed the signing of upcoming artist Chris Enterline to helm the upcoming four-issue release of “Still Playing with Toys Comics Presents” which will unveil the flagship properties for the company.

New to the comics field, Enterline cites his influences as Chris Bachalo, Michael Turner, and Todd McFarlane and fulfils his life-long dream to be a published comics artist with this announcement.

“Chris is unbelievable. He has a unique vision and it’s been an absolute pleasure concepting and building our projects from the ground up with him. I have the utmost faith in placing our launch title in his hands... That and he draws a drool-worthy sexy female figure,” says Editor-in-Chief Troy Benjamin of Enterline’s artistic talents.

Enterline has signed on for four issues to be released summer of 2007 with an option for future books to be published under the Still Playing with Toys Comics banner.

Still Playing with Toys, a new company formed by Troy Benjamin and Drew Drescher, is the exemplification of an independent publishing company. Their goal, to create original material and to provide up and coming creators with an outlet for their imaginations. With strong backgrounds in entertainment and business, Benjamin and Drescher aim for their debut titles to be launched in the summer of 2007. The company is based out of North Hollywood, CA.
